OHIO GAMMA HALL of FAME CEREMONY 2018

The George E. Smith Distinguished Alumni 2018

JEFF ODENWALD '69

We were pleased to have Jeff Odenwald as a 2018 George E Smith Distinguished Alumni. Jeff spoke of his career in Major League Baseball with the Cincinnati Red, Mariners, Cubs, and Detroit Tigers. The audience really enjoyed his "behind the scenes" stories of his career in baseball. Jeff won two World Series rings while he was with the Red's.

DR. DON STENTA

Don Stenta '02 served Ohio Gamma for almost 20 years as our Chapter Counselor and had a major influence on the development of our chapter.

Don guided us through the Balanced Man program when we re-organized as a new chapter in 2002 and continued to maintain and preach accountability to all our undergrad brothers until his retirement from the position this year. We believe Don's leadership was the key factor for Ohio Gamma's leadership position at OSU and throughout all the chapters in the country. Don is the only alumni brother to have been honored with both the Barnett Alumni Service award and the Smith Distinguished Alumni award.

Bob Barnett Outstanding Alumni Service Award

KAY ROBINSON

Kay Robinson '08 was honored with this award. Kay, currently Senior Director of Student and Community Engagement at the University of Central Oklahoma, spoke about her time as House

Director during our formative years in 2002 thru 2006. She had a great influence on our chapter and helped us become one of the premiere chapters in the country. It was a Major League baseball theme as Kay just completed visiting all the major league ballparks before she turned 40. Kay was here with her 3 year old son Rex who seemed to really enjoy Loungegate the next day!

SPECIAL HONOREE'S

Our Balanced Man Founding Fathers

This year we honored our Balanced Man Founders who were initiated between September 2001 and November 2002. 24 of the 46 were able to attend the event. Brothers Jon Maneval '02, undergrad chapter President, and Scott Phillips '05, 2 time undergrad chapter President and current District Governor, handled the honors and Jon provided a "comedy routine" of memories from our early years. To honor this group a plaque was prepared to be hung in the entryway of the chapter house and that entryway was dedicated as "Founders Hall". All of the Founders in attendance received a copy of the plaque.

See the video of the Founders presentation on our website: ohiogamma.org

HOMECOMING WEEKEND 2018

Sig Ep was proud to have 2 members of the 2018 Homecoming court - Andrew Benvenuto and Callum Henderson.

It was another fun Homecoming weekend for Ohio Gamma as we celebrated 110 years at Ohio State. On Friday night we welcomed over 130 alumni and undergrads at our annual Hall of Fame event and attendance at Loungegate on Saturday has become too large to count! It's great to see such a large turnout at Loungegate as it gives all brothers a chance to catch up. It's also great to see some "next generation" recruits in the Loungegate crowd!

PASSION SCHOLARSHIPS

Each year, in addition to our scholarships focused on GPA, we award scholarships to undergrads involved in special projects designed to enhance their career or general knowledge-in short, their "Passion". These are their stories:

Teddy Parsley-Human impacts on the Natural Environment in Australia $400

My past month was spent in Queensland, Australia, studying the human impact on the environment. Australia is the perfect place to study the anthropogenic impact with its vast variety of ecosystems, organisms and weather. We traveled around the east coast of northern Australia visiting areas of the protected rainforest and studying the endemic species that call it home. We also visited areas of the Outback and learned about the Aboriginal (Native land owners) impact on the land prior to the European settlement. Lastly, the final days were spent on the Great Barrier Reef doing fish population surveys and learning how the choices made on the land significantly affect the reefs health.

Zachary Salyer

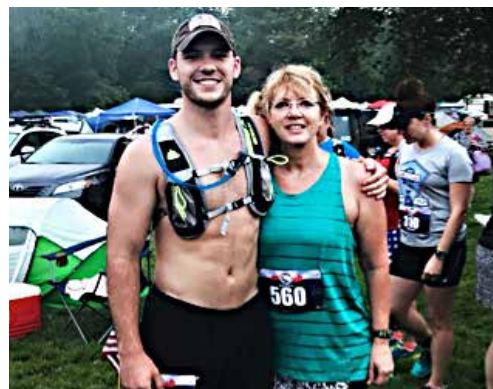

From June 8th to June 24th I went to Pikes Peak with Buckeye Current, an Ohio State student project team that builds and races an electric motorcycle. The first week we were there we went to track days and had some practice on the mountain. The next week we practiced on the mountain, but on the Wednesday before the race, one of our vehicles was in an accident. It was a very traumatic experience and luckily no one was injured. We continued working on getting the bike prepared the next few days. Unfortunately, during the race our rider crashed. Luckily, our rider only suffered minor injuries but the bike was destroyed. It was a stressful trip that made the team face and overcome challenges, with a disappointing ending. Now we must rebuild from scratch and prepare for the future. This trip taught me professional and leadership skills.

Waitt Hanlin and his Mom-Ultra Marathon-$200

On June 9th of this year, I made my first attempt at running 100 miles in 24 hours at the Eagle Up Ultra. The night before, I slept in a tent along with a small village of about 200 other tents and over 350 racers. I woke up at 4:30 AM to stretch and eat breakfast, and the race started after the presentation of the colors and the national anthem at 6:00 AM. My body and mind held up through the heat and rain until I began having intense pain in my left knee at about mile 46 of the loop. I crossed the start/finish line one last time before deciding to pull myself from the race after a total of 50 miles (10 laps) in 11:14:44.

Though I finished first in my class for the 50-mile ultra, I was still severely disappointed that I wasn't able to complete the 100 miles I set out to do after hundreds of miles of training. I'm also disappointed at the way in which I pulled myself out of the race. However, I did gain the painful perspective of what it feels like to quit something after committing to it and having so many people support me in the endeavor. On the other hand, mother was able to complete 31 miles after 15 hours, which filled me with a sense of pride because she had only decided to sign up for the race the day before it took place. I know that if I hadn't run the race, she wouldn't have challenged herself to such a feat at age 56 and I may have not run as far without seeing her on the course.

Andriy Vlashyn-Volunteer Healthcare project in Thailand -$400

As a healthcare volunteer in Thailand, I devoted my time to creating and presenting health education in schools and surrounding community centers. I taught basic English to kindergarteners as well as human anatomy at the local schools. I led physical education programs, sports, and crafts at the center for those with disabilities to promote healthy lifestyles and creativity. I helped conduct physiotherapy at the center to promote mobility and functional ability. When I was not volunteering within the local community, I had the opportunity to explore Thailand with other volunteers and make memories and friendships that I will never forget.

I found myself questioning my future and noticed a change of perception on life and those around me. Before this journey, I was unsure of what my future profession would be. Although I did not gain a specific answer overseas, I realized that I greatly enjoy working with children and helping those with disabilities. I noticed how quickly I was able to make the unfamiliar become familiar. I acclimated to the culture with ease and found myself feeling comfortable and welcome wherever I went. With this acknowledgement came the realization that my future profession must include working with other cultures.

Rohan O Makhijani- Summer Funding for Research @ James Cancer Hospital -$400

I participated in the Department of Internal Medicine's "Grever" Internship, which is an intensive shadowing program for seven selected rising juniors and seniors in the Biomedical Science undergraduate major. For a six-week period over the summer, I divided my days between participating in rounds at the Wexner Medical Center and Nationwide Children's Hospital and conducting research in Dr. Clinton's oncology lab. I was able to shadow interventional cardiology, general medicine, oncology, pediatric medicine, adult general medicine, and radiology, all while making significant progress in my research lab and independent research project.

Scholarships were also awarded to:

Mason White

Great White Shark Maine Conservationist - Cape Town South Africa - $400

Nick Valin

Engineering the Castles and Cathedrals of England and Wales - $400

FRATERNITY ALUMNI ADVISORY COUNCIL

OSU FORMS FRATERNITY ALUMNI ADVISORY COUNCIL

In an effort to improve all fraternities at Ohio State and provide advice to the University on fraternity issues, OSU has formed the Fraternity Alumni Advisory Council (FAAC). The Council is made up of at least one alumni member from each fraternity along with representatives from OSU. The major issues, of course, are hazing and alcohol and these are the priority for the council. There is a real desire among the alumni members to improve these issues and many fraternities are taking serious steps to revise their chapter activities.

OHIO GAMMA ALUMNI

MAKING A DIFFERENCE...

The History of New Beginnings of Central Florida

It Started with Steve and Linda Smith

On a cool Sunday morning in January 2007 following church service in Clermont, Florida, my wife, Linda, and I met a man who would transform our lives forever.

Linda and I had recently retired from our corporate executive jobs, and moved to Clermont from Columbus, Ohio. We wondered what God had planned for us going forward.

This encounter in this particular Sunday answered our question. After church service, a couple invited us to join them for breakfast and get to know each other. At the restaurant door sat a man on a bench who asked if we knew of a church he could walk to. He had no car. Although our church wasn't within walking distance, we offered a ride to take him, then pick him up after the service to take him home.

I have no idea why we did this, as this was highly unusual for me.

A Startling Discovery

After I picked him up after church, we took him to lunch. He was new in town and seeking a job. He told us that his father died a few years prior and he tried managing the company but failed. He had moved to Clermont seeking a new beginning.

After lunch, I was taking him home and was startled when I stopped my car in front of some woods. He told me that was where he lived...in the woods.

Since it was going to go below freezing that evening, I told him that I would call our pastor to find a safe, warm place to stay until he secured employment. Another surprise for me.... there was only one small home far from Clermont providing housing for many men and women. They let him stay there and the next day I took him to find work.

Change, but not enough

He secured employment with a friend from church, and I took him home that evening. I promised to take him to and from work daily, until I found a place for him to live, nearer to Clermont.

I met the other people living in the small home, and offered to also help them find work and better housing. Linda and I started searching on the internet for agencies who could help. We figured many others would be losing their job, their home, and their hope in years ahead.

Another surprise.... there were no agencies helping this population in Clermont. The drive to Orlando where agencies could possibly help was too far away.

I had to do something

Consequently, after much prayer, we committed our lives to help the homeless get back on their feet and we asked several caring Christians to help us form a non-profit. Thus, we launched New Beginnings of Central Florida on June 17, 2007, with a retired pastor, counselor, job trainer, social worker, accountant, and an attorney. They all volunteered their time.

Jesus says that we are to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, care for the sick, and house the poor. Linda and I began to understand what that verse really means. We promised to raise funds for housing and wages for the staff serving this ministry.

What has happened since

God has been amazing as He has since provided the funds to acquire:

- 2 large homes that can accommodate 26 at any one time for those wanting to turn their life around
- 8 affordable housing units available for families, seniors, veterans, single men and moms with children
- 35 paid caring staff members over 1,000 volunteers serving annually
- 3 large thrift stores throughout Central Florida that give away tens of thousands of dollars worth of clothing and household items yearly
- 3 drop-in centers where we help the homeless and hungry of Central Florida
- 3 pantries to help people who are hungry and in need of a hand up

In 2016, the State of Florida awarded New Beginnings $19 million to build 96 affordable rental units that are desperately needed in Clermont.

Our mission is to empower people in need to live a responsible life, and we accomplish this by teaching one to fish rather than by just handing out fish.

We feel very blessed that God led us to breakfast on a chilly January morning after church service. We know that He has many more blessings for New Beginnings.

We are very grateful for the many caring people in our community who care for those who are hungry, need clothing and are sick and homeless; without God's leading, and these caring servants following Him, there wouldn't be a New Beginnings!

How I give: Chris Burk '00

By Todd Jones

The Las Vegas alumni club president is leading the charge in outreach to help the Vegas community.

An energy source exists in the Nevada desert apart from the neon lights of casinos. The vibe stems from the Ohio State Alumni Club of Las Vegas, powered in part by the radiant personality of the chapter's president, Chris Burk '00. "I've always been fairly Type A, a go-getter," says Burk, a lawyer who grew up in Beavercreek, Ohio, and moved to Vegas in 2004.

Burk's leadership steered the club through a somber mission in October, when 58 people were killed in Las Vegas in the worst mass shooting in modern U.S. history.

"Chris really rallied the troops," says club member Kim Wheeler Makita '98, a physician's assistant who treated some of the 500-plus people injured when a gunman opened fire at a concert.

Burk was behind a flurry of emails and social media requests that began the morning after the shooting and led to the alumni chapter's donation of food and water to the Ronald McDonald House of Greater Las Vegas. Club members followed up by raising nearly $4,000 for the victims' fund through a GoFundMe drive and football ticket raffle.

Burk also organized a competition to replenish local blood banks through a blood battle pitting Buckeyes against Michigan State alumni on the day their teams met at Ohio Stadium in November.

"This isn't a fad," says Vegas club member Ryan Lower '04. "We've been trying to make a commitment to make things better and help out the community."

Burk, who is married with two sons, credits his chapter's board members for responding a couple years ago when The Ohio State University Alumni Association urged the club to become more active in community outreach.

Members say their Vegas chapter has been rejuvenated under Burk's stewardship. They've fed the homeless and raised money for the Nevada Paralyzed Veterans of America. In December, they packed 146 lunches at the Ronald McDonald House for children at two local hospitals.

"We are an extension of Ohio State, and we take that very seriously," Burk says. "We want to be nothing but honorable and carry ourselves with high integrity and character. We know that Ohio State expects that of us."

Fall is the time to think about donating to our Ohio Gamma scholarship fund. Each year we provide scholarships to deserving undergrads based on their GPA (Sound Mind) and participation on our Sound Body program. We also use your donations to help our undergrads participate in leadership development programs.

This year, an anonymous brother has offered to match your donations up to $5000. So this is a particularly good time to give!

To do so, go to our website: ohiogamma.org and click on "donate". This will take you to our fund which is part of the OSU Foundation. Any donation to this fund is also a donation to OSU. OR you can simply mail a check to:
